

Seven grapes and one thousand aromas

In Alsace, the wines generally take their name from the grape variety from which they are made, and not from their terroir. This originality has doubtless helped create their worldwide reputation. Winelovers appreciate the Alsace grape varieties because they reunite all the pleasures of the senses : a slim bottle that is immediately recognisable, fruit-driven aromas that identify each grape, then the unique taste of Sylvaner, Pinot Blanc, Riesling, Muscat, Pinot Gris, Gewurztraminer, Pinot Noir, creating a unique palette of wines that ranges all the way from light and dry to opulent and rich.

SYLVANER

A remarkably fresh, light wine with a delicate flavour, it is refreshing, vivacious and easy to enjoy.

PINOT BLANC

Well rounded and delicate, fresh yet supple, it represents the happy medium in the range of Alsace wines.

RIESLING

Dry, refined and delicately fruity, it has an elegant bouquet with sometimes mineral or floral notes, giving it good ageing potential. Recognised as one of the world's finest white wine varieties, it is a gastronomic wine par excellence.

MUSCAT D'ALSACE

Very aromatic and wonderfully grapey, it is a dry wine, very different from the sweet Muscats of the Mediterranean.

TOKAY PINOT GRIS

Rich, full bodied and with a long finish, it displays woodland aromas, sometimes slightly smoky, with characteristic opulence and roundness.

PINOT NOIR

The only Alsace variety producing red or rosé wines, the wines have a typically cherry-like, fruity character. Matured in oak barriques, they gain additional structure and complexity.

GEWURZTRAMINER

Full bodied and exuberant, powerful and seductive, it is the best-known Alsace wine. Its deep bouquet displays rich aromas of fruit (mango, lychee), flowers (rose petals), or spices (the prefix «Gewurz» means «spice»).

KLEVENER DE HEILIGENSTEIN

This less aromatic grape variety derived from the old Traminer or Savagnin rose is much appreciated by gastronomes. It is grown only in a defined area in Heiligenstein and nearby.
